

ABSTRACT

A small volume flow measurement apparatus is described, together with a method for measuring a small volume flow. The small volume flow measurement apparatus is composed primarily of a holding tank, a metering reservoir and an electronics module. Flow is calculated based on the number of times the metering reservoir is filled or emptied.